Need to brush up on 2nd and 3rd century Chinese military history? This is the place to learn about the Three Kingdoms period in which this game is set, and discover each officer's role in the history of the period.

Free Mode

Free Mode allows you to select a character and fight a battle on whichever side you choose.

SETUP

Select your battle and then choose whether you wish to Invade or Defend. You'll then be taken to a limited Settings menu that includes:

DIFFICULTY	Five difficulty settings, from Novice to Chaos.
CONDITIONS	This setting refers to the number of troops on your side. The worse the conditions, the fewer the troops.
EXPERIENCE	If set to "Yes," each character and weapon will retain experience earned in past battles. If set to "No," everything will be at base stats during the fight.

BATTLE SETTINGS

You'll then be taken to the Information Screen where you'll see a map of the area and several pre-battle options. On this screen a second player may press START to join in the battle as one of your generals. See page [18] for explanations of the pre-battle options.

EMPIRE MODE

In Empire Mode, your goal is to unify the 25 areas of China under a single general. Your force will grow as you invade enemy areas and make savvy political decisions.

Starting an Empire Mode Game

SELECT A SCENARIO

(5 lines)

The game starts with two scenarios to choose from in Empire Mode. The first is based on actual historical events, while the second, "A Gathering of Heroes," is fictional and distributes forces at random throughout the kingdoms. Other scenarios can be unlocked through game play.

FORCE SELECT

In the "Forces" screen of a historical scenario, select a colored area to play as that area's ruler. If you choose a neutral area (colored in white), you may choose your own ruler and officers in the "OFFICERS" screen, selecting from any unlocked character or any character made in the Edit Mode. In the "A Gathering of Heroes" scenario, you may choose any officers for any area.

• NOTE - New Officers

Whenever you recruit a new officer in Empire Mode, that character will be selectable the next time you begin a new Free Mode or Empire Mode game. Make sure to save your game whenever a character appears with the "Get!" mark.

CHOOSE YOUR SETTINGS

MAP	Determines auto-map display settings.
DIFFICULTY	Affects strength of enemies and your ability to save during combat.
EXPERIENCE	If set to "Yes," officers retain experience gained in other games (like Free Mode battles).
TIME LIMIT	If set to "Yes," you must unify China within 200 turns to win.
EDIT OFFICERS	If set to "Appear," characters created in Edit Mode may appear in game.
ANNEX	If set to "Ruler," conquering a ruler's area will earn the victor all of the ruler's lands. In "Isolate," defeating a ruler with no place to run will do the same.
OFFICER LIMIT	Sets the rules concerning the maximum number of officers you can control.
OFFICER DEATH	If set to "No," officers cannot die outside of storyline events.

Starting Phase

SPECIAL EVENTS

In the first segment of each turn you may be approached by rival rulers who seek alliances, or deposed officers who wish to pledge their service to you. Certain areas may be stricken by natural disasters such as earthquakes or plagues that drain gold, lower area defenses, or kill soldiers.

REVENUE REPORT

At the beginning of each turn, you'll receive a report on the amount of income gained in the previous season. Each turn represents one season out of the year. Your income will increase as your force grows and you conquer more areas.

Policy Phase

SELECT A POLICY

The next step is to devise political strategies for the remainder of the turn. For examples of policies, turn to page [12]. You may determine your policies in one of three ways:

CONSULT

Implement a pair of policies suggested by one of your officers. Whichever officer you choose, you must accept both policies; you may not pick and choose. You may choose "SELECT NONE", to return to the previous menu.

DELEGATE

Choose any officer and entrust them with the task of making all of the policy decisions for the turn. The selected officer will choose a number of policies equal to the number of Orders remaining.

ASSIGN

Select and implement a specific policy of your choice. There is a limited selection of policies available initially, but your officers will develop new ones as you use the Consult and Delegate options. Whenever you implement a policy with the "NEW!" Tag, it will appear in your list of available policies.

• NOTE - Order Limits

The number of Orders you may give in each turn is limited by the number of areas you control. Additionally, each policy has a gold cost. You cannot implement policies you cannot afford! You earn gold at the beginning of each turn and from certain policies.

REGIONS CONTROLLED	ORDERS PER TURN
1	1
2 - 3	2
4 - 9	3
10 - 15	4
16 - 25	5

STATION OFFICERS

It is important to keep your best officers on the front lines; you can only attack an area with officers in areas adjacent to the target, and only the officers stationed in or adjacent to an area can defend it from enemy attacks. The Station command is a free action that does not use up an order.

To move officers, first choose one area you control, then scroll to the right and choose a second area. You can now move officers freely between the two areas, and to and from the "Unplaced" list. Officers left in the "Unplaced" list will be expelled from your force when you are finished stationing.

OTHER FUNCTIONS

If you select the "Info" command you'll be taken to a screen where you can view a wide variety of information, including:

FORCES	Each opponent and the strength of his force.
AREAS	Each area's defenses, income and resources.
OFFICERS	The basic stats of all officers in your force.

EMPIRE MODE

Develop tactics and items for battle!

Battle items that boost your stats, grant you steeds, or improve your powers are not found on the battlefield; they must be developed by Policies. When you create a favorite item, use the policy repeatedly to increase your store of that item (up to nine units), since items are lost after being used in battle. The same holds true for Tactics, which may turn the tide of battle in your favor. But you can only stock five tactics at once—total.

Watch your troop levels!

It's hard to win a difficult battle without an army on your side, but lost soldiers won't replace themselves. The only way to refill your squadrons is with Military policies.

Winning the respect—or fear—of the peasants.

Those who rule justly will win the respect of their subjects, while cruel tyrants will earn only contempt. Those who rule consistently fairly will gain access to especially enlightened Policies and lose access to unjust Policies, while tyrannical leaders will gain access to especially cruel Policies and lose access to the fair ones.

If the peasants are happy, they'll join your army in droves when their homelands are attacked. If they're not, they may welcome the invaders and join the attacking army instead!

Battle Phase

BUILD YOUR EMPIRE ON THE BATTLEFIELD

When you are done implementing policies and stationing troops, select "Proceed" to move to the Battle Phase. Here you can choose to invade neighboring areas, aid allies on the battlefield or defend your own lands against attackers. You may only participate in one battle per turn. To proceed to your next turn without combat, select "Skip Battle."

INVADE

Lead an attack on an adjacent area. If you win the battle, the area and its officers will join your force. Before you attack an area, study its defenses carefully in the Info screen.

DEFEND

Personally lead the defense of an area against an opponent's invasion. Note that if you choose not to defend an area (or cannot because you were attacked multiple times in one turn), the enemy attacks will be resolved based on the defenses of the area and the strengths of the opposing forces.

JOINT ACTIONS

When an ally requests your help, you may send an officer to aid in their cause. Select JOINT ATTACK to participate in an ally's invasion, or HELP ALLY to help defend their area from a mutual enemy. You won't claim land for these victories, but your ally will repay you with gold.

UNIT SELECT

The next step is to select the officers that will participate in battle. In an invasion, you may only select officers that are stationed in areas that are connected to your target by a white line. You may typically choose up to three generals and three lieutenants. The first player will control the first selected general, while a second player can choose among the remaining generals.

• NOTE - Officer Ranks

Major characters and characters created with the Edit Mode are generals. You can only play as a general. The generals you do not control can use skills when engaged in battle, but Lieutenants cannot. The skills are:

RUSH	Temporarily boost Attack of general's troops
DEFEND	Temporarily boosts Defense of general's troops
RALLY	Raises Morale of general's troops
SPEED	Temporarily raises Speed of general's troops
ASSAULT	Leads vicious attack on enemy base
FIRE	Set fire to an enemy base, damaging those within
TAUNT	Your force's inventory of Tactics.

EMPIRE MODE

The Battlefield

Whether you're playing in Free Mode or Empire Mode, it will take both strategy and reflexes to lead your forces to victory.

PRE-BATTLE OPTIONS

The Information Screen contains a map of the battlefield and several pre-battle options. It is here that a second player may press the [START] button to join in the game.

PREPARATIONS

Players can change their character's equipped weapon and equip one harness, one orb, and up to five special items (see page [21]). Note that win or lose, these items will be lost at the end of the battle.

CONDITIONS

Review the conditions of victory and defeat in this battle. The victory condition usually involves taking over a specific enemy base, so take this opportunity to plan your strategy!

UNIT INFO

Review the starting positions of the officers on both sides of the field. You can also see their troop levels, troop morale, and skill.

TACTICS

Ready up to two of the special battle Tactics you stocked during the policy stage. Some tactics are active throughout the battle, while others must be selected and used during the fight. The readied tactics are lost at the end of the battle.

OPTIONS

Here you can change your map display preferences and select a music track for the battle.

MID-BATTLE OPTIONS

During battles, you can return to the Information Screen by pressing the START button. In addition to most of the above options, you have a few new ones:

PERSONAL

This screen allows you to review your stats and equipped items.

UNIT INFO

During battle, you can now use this command to give your officers specific orders. The orders are:

ATTACK UNIT	Attack a specific enemy officer.
ATTACK BASE	Attack an enemy-held base.
AID UNIT	Support an allied officer.
AID BASE	Defend a friendly base against attack.
NONE	Officer will choose his own goals.

BATTLE LOG

If you miss some of the on-screen messages in the heat of battle, you can review the last 64 messages here.

RETREAT

Abandon your attack or defense plans and admit defeat. As with a normal loss, some of your officers may be captured by your opponent.

2P EXIT

In a two player game, the second player may choose this option to leave the game and return his or her general to computer control.

INTERIM SAVE

Save your current position in the battle. The number of times you can use this option per battle is limited by your difficulty mode:

NOVICE	No limit
EASY	No limit
NORMAL	3 times
HARD	1 time
CHAOS	Not permitted

Victory and Defeat

THE SPOILS OF WAR

When you are successful in combat, you earn items as well as accomplish your goals. These items do not go in your inventory, but instead are automatically used to raise your general's stats, improve your weapon, or add gold to your coffers. You earn more and better items depending on the difficulty of the battle.

MODIFYING YOUR WEAPON

Among the rewards are scrolls, which can be added to your weapon to improve its abilities. Each weapon can have up to five scrolls equipped at once.

EMPIRE MODE

EARNING EXPERIENCE POINTS

You and your officers will earn points based on your achievements (conquering bases, defeating generals, etc.) and the overall success of the entire army. These points will raise levels and improve stats.

VICTORY IN EMPIRE MODE

After winning a battle as an invader, the contested territory is added to your area, and your officer limit and revenue will increase. You will also gain the ability to produce that area's signature products. If you win as a defender, you retain the contested territory. Either way, you can then hire any captured enemy officers (at a price of between 400 to 4000 gold each) or dismiss them.

DEFEAT IN EMPIRE MODE

If you lose a battle as a defender, the contested territory falls into enemy hands. (If you lose all of your areas, the game is lost.) Some of your officers who participated in the battle may have been captured by your opponent, who can hire or dismiss them.

Items

The items shown here cannot be found on the battlefield. Instead, they must be developed by Policies during Empire Mode. You can equip these at the beginning of any battle, but they will be removed from your inventory after the fight.

ORBS

Orbs add a special elemental effect to your Charge attacks. Their levels cannot be raised.

	Fire Orb Add a special fire attack.		Ice Orb Add a special ice attack.
	Shadow Orb Empties Musou Gauge and enemies may be defeated in 1 blow.		Light Orb Attacks break through the enemy's guard
