SYSTEM DESCRIPTIONS

Background & Foreground Oversway Moves

There are three game planes referred to as the main plane, background plane, and foreground plane. Battles normally take place on the main plane, but by pushing the ○ Button you can make an Oversway Move to escape to the background plane. In addition, you can push ○ Button while pushing the ↓ directional button to make a Foreground Oversway move when you want to escape to the foreground plane.

Anti-Oversway Attack

When your opponent makes an Oversway move to the foreground or background, you can spring at your opponent with a well-timed push of the  Button and attack. These attacks can also be made from a crouching position.

Line-Change Escape Rise

Pushing the  Button while getting up from a knockdown lets you get to your feet after rolling to a different plane.

Aerial Turnaround

You can twist around in midair during a jump by pushing the  Button before making an attack.

Combination Attacks

Combination moves let you cancel a normal punch or kick attack to shift to another, and cancels can also be used with Special Moves (some Combination Attacks, however, can't be canceled). To use these, it's necessary to follow the designated order of commands, pushing the punch or kick buttons (some require you to do this while pushing down on directional buttons as well), and in certain instances you'll need to use a Special Move command, too.

Power Gauge

The Power Gauge in the bottom left corner of the screen increases as you use Special Moves (even if they are deflected), when you hit opponents with a normal attack, or as you guard against attacks. This gauge changes among three levels based on its amount of energy and your remaining life energy to enable you to use Guard Cancel, Super Special Moves, and Hidden Abilities by expending gauge energy. The condition of the Power Gauge continues into the subsequent round.

YELLOW GAUGE - When the gauge becomes halfway full, the gauge's color changes to yellow and you're able to use Guard Cancels.

S. POWER - When the Power Gauge hits MAX, the "S. POWER" message appears above the gauge. Gauge energy subsequently drops as time elapses, and you're able to use Guard Cancels and Super Special Moves before it runs out.

P. POWER - When the Power Gauge hits MAX and the Life Gauge flashes red, the "P. POWER" message will appear above the gauge. The gauge energy subsequently drops as time elapses, and you're able to use Guard Cancels and Hidden Ability moves before it runs out.

Guard Cancels

These moves can be used when the Power Gauge turns yellow or the Power Gauge hits MAX. Entering a specific Special Move command the instant you guard against an opponent's attack releases your character from the fixed guard position to use a move.

Super Special Moves

These powerful moves surpass Special Moves and can be used when the Life Gauge flashes red. You can also use these when the Power Gauge hits MAX and the "S. POWER" message appears, but after you use these moves all energy in the Power Gauge is expended. You can use Super Special Moves over and over without exhausting Power Gauge energy only when the Life Gauge flashes red.

Hidden Abilities

These moves exceed Super Special Moves in power and if you enter specific commands when the "P. POWER" message appears over the power gauge (when the Power Gauge hits MAX and the Life Gauge flashes red), you exhaust all gauge energy to use these moves.

"REAL BOUT FATAL FURY SPECIAL"

Even after surviving countless battles, the white-hot passion of our fighters can never seem to be quenched. It's been quite a while since the sublime "Real Bout" took place, and our wolves, craving the further thrill of combat, prepare to unleash all of their primal instincts for battle. And "Real Bout SPECIAL" is the just the venue for them to do it....

For that reason, using an attack while on the same line as your opponent and when you are on a different line will change the nature of a normal attacks even if you use the same one. When your opponent is on a different plane, pushing the □ Button produces a Line-Move Punch, pushing the × Button produces a Line-Move Kick, and pushing the △ Button results in an "Anti-Line Attack" (an attack toward a different plane). Anti-Line Attacks can also be made from a crouching position.

Line-Shift Attack

You can knock your opponent who is on the same plane to another one with a combo move. Then you can wage an extra attack. Only specific characters can use this move.

Combination Attacks

Combination moves let you cancel a normal punch or kick attack to shift to another, and cancels can also be used with Special Moves (some Combination Attacks, however, can't be canceled). To use these, it's necessary to follow the designated order of commands, pushing the punch or kick buttons (some require you to do this while pushing down on direction keys as well), and in certain instances you'll need to use a Special Move command, too.

Break Shot

This "Guard Cancel" move can be used when the Power Gauge reaches or exceeds the "H. POWER" level. Entering a specific Special Move command just as you guard against an opponent's attack releases your character from the fixed guard position to use a move.

Super Special Moves

These powerful moves surpass Special Moves and can be used when the Life Gauge flashes red. You can also use these when the Power Gauge hits MAX and the "S. SYSTEM DESCRIPTIONS

Sway Line System

There are two planes consisting of the Main Line in the foreground and the Sway Line in the background, and characters usually battle on the foreground's Main Line. By pushing the \circ Button during battle, you can jump (Sway Move) to the Sway Line in the background temporarily to avoid an opponent's attack then return back to the Main Line. There are some exceptions to this rule, however, and if you press and hold \square during a Sway Move, you can stay on the Sway Line for this period without being forced back to the Main Line. You can also use guard commands on the Sway Line.

Main Line Attacks

This is an attack you use when you're on the Sway Line and your opponent is on the Main Line using the following commands: push the □ Button to make an "Upper Main Line Attack;" push the × Button to make a "Lower Main Line Attack;" and push the △ Button to make a "Strong Main Line Attack."

Sway Line Attacks

These attacks can be used when you're on the Main Line and your opponent is on the Sway Line: push the ○ Button to make an "Upper Sway Line Attack" and push the ○ Button while pushing the ↓ to make a "Lower Sway Line Attack."

Evasion Attack

You can make attacks while avoiding an opponent's upper-body attack by pushing the □ and × Buttons simultaneously. This lets you counterattack like a Break Shot (Guard Cancel) without expending Power Gauge energy.

Grand Sway (Knockdown Evasion)

Pushing the ○ Button while pressing △ just before being knocked down instantly moves you to the Sway Line to fall there then safely get up. It's an effective technique when you're cornered at the edges of the screen.

Technical Rise (Knockdown Evasion)

Pushing the ○ Button while pressing down on the any directional button (EXCEPT ↑) right before being knocked down brings you quickly back to your feet after a back flip. Not only can you evade your opponent's attack, but you get the extra benefit of making it more difficult to get attacked as you get up.

Combination Attacks

Combination moves let you cancel a normal punch or kick attack to shift to another, and cancels can also be used with Special Moves (some Combination Attacks, however, can't be canceled). To use these, it's necessary to follow the designated order of commands, pushing the punch or kick buttons (some require you to do this while pushing down on direction keys as well), and in certain instances you'll need to use a Special Move command, too.

Power Gauge

The Power Gauge in the bottom left corner of the screen increases as you use Special Moves (even if they are deflected), when you hit opponents with a normal attack, or as you guard against attacks. This gauge changes among three levels based on its amount of energy and your remaining life energy to enable you to use Guard Cancel, Super Special Moves, and Hidden Abilities by expending gauge energy. The condition of the Power Gauge continues into the subsequent round.

H. POWER - When the gauge becomes halfway full, the gauge's color turns yellow and the "H. POWER" message appears over the gauge. Hereafter you are able to use the Knockdown Evasion and Break Shot moves.

S. POWER - When the Power Gauge hits MAX, the "S. POWER" message appears above the gauge. Gauge energy subsequently drops as time elapses, and you're able to use Guard Cancels and Super Special Moves before it runs out.

P. POWER - When the Power Gauge hits MAX and the Life Gauge flashes red, the "P. POWER" message will appear above the gauge. The gauge energy subsequently drops as time elapses, and you're able to use Guard Cancels and Hidden Ability moves before it runs out.

Break Shot

This so-called "Guard Cancel" move can be used when the Power Gauge reaches or exceeds the "H. POWER" level. Entering a specific Special Move command just as you guard against an opponent's attack releases your character from the fixed guard position to use a move.

Super Special Moves

These powerful moves surpass Special Moves and can be used when the Life Gauge flashes red. You can use these even while the Power Gauge hits MAX and the "S. POWER" message appears, but after you use these moves all energy in the Power Gauge is expended. You can use Super Special Moves over and over without exhausting Power Gauge energy, however, when the Life Gauge flashes red.

Hidden Abilities

These moves exceed Super Special Moves in power and if you enter specific commands when the "P. POWER" message appears over the power gauge (when the Power Gauge hits MAX and the Life Gauge flashes red), you exhaust all gauge energy to use these moves.

CHARACTER SETUP

You can create two types of original character colors. First, select a game title using the $\leftarrow\rightarrow$ then move to "CHARACTER NAME" and select a character using the $\leftarrow\rightarrow$ (*1). Now select either the MAIN 1 or MAIN 2 palette (*2) and use the $\leftarrow\rightarrow$ to select your desired color, then push the X Button to confirm (at this time, pushing the R1, R2, L1, or L2 Buttons shows you the location of your chosen color). After this, manipulate the RGB bars to change the color. Select a color bar using the $\uparrow\downarrow$ then use the $\leftarrow\rightarrow$ to change gradations. Confirm your changes by pressing the X Button and push the O Button to save the changes (*3). Repeat these steps above to change colors and select "EXIT" when you're through to go back to the Main Menu screen.

1: Pushing the SELECT button when you select "CHARACTER NAME" turns all of that character's colors to their initial settings.*

2: Pushing the SELECT button when using a palette returns its colors to the initial state.*

3: Pushing the SELECT button with each selected color returns them back to their initial state.*

Using Original Colors

Hold down the SELECT Button when selecting a character from the character select screen. This will activate the new color scheme you created for that character.
