SWORD SPIRIT GAUGE

This represents the character's attack strength. The Sword Spirit gauge decreases while making slash attacks but increases (replenishes) as time elapses. The greater the amount of the Sword Spirit gauge, the more powerful your attack strength becomes and when it reaches MAX greatly increases it. When your rage reaches MAX, the Sword Spirit gauge extends and your attack strength also hits its maximum level.

CONCENTRATION ONE GAUGE & MEDITATION

The ⊙ symbol above the Life Gauge represents the Concentration One Gauge reflecting the character's psychic power. Continuing to meditate while the rage gauge is full, increases the Concentration One gauge in exchange for the Rage Gauge's decrease and that portion of the Life Gauge turns red. As the Concentration One Gauge gets longer, the amount of time the Concentration One can last also gets longer. You can't meditate when the Rage Gauge reaches MAX or used up.

CONCENTRATION ONE

When you meet three conditions—entering a round that will end the game if you lose, the Concentration One meter amount exceeds your remaining life energy, and you're not in a Rage Explosion—your Life Energy Gauge turns blue letting you activate Concentration One. When you activate Concentration One, the Rage Gauge disappears to reveal a special gauge showing the amount of time lasting for this state. You get the effects below until the time of this special gauge runs out.

Concentration One ends if you're hit with an attack or use a Fatal Flash move.

Effects of CONCENTRATION ONE

- The flow of time slows down along with your opponent's movements.
- Your character can move at normal speed.
- You can use powerful thrusting "Fatal Flash" moves.

The Sword Spirit Gauge restores itself with the passing of time and the color changes based on its level.

SAMURAI SHODOWN VI

When the amount of the gauge drops below 90%, it turns green and your attack strength decreases in proportion to the gauge amount. When it runs out, attack strength drops to 30% of normal.

WHEN ORANGE...

When the gauge amount exceeds 90%, it turns orange. The attack strength is 100%.

WHEN FLASHING RED...

HOW TO USE EDITED COLORS

When you want to use a character color you have created, decide on a character while pushing down on the select button on the Character Select screen.

COLOR EDIT

You can edit and save character colors as you desire. You can create up to a maximum of 5 colors for each character, so possible colors combinations reach 10 when you add them to the 5 default colors of the △, □, ○, × and R1 button.

COLOR EDIT/SAVE

To begin with, select a character and then select a default color to edit. On the color edit screen, there are separate screens on which you can edit the colors for the character, weapons, etc. When you select an image and decide on the color palette, increase or decrease color bar values to change colors. When you've finished editing, save your edited color using PlayStation 2 Memory Card (8MB) Save & Load.

HOW TO USE EDIT COLORS

To use the color edited and saved with Color Edit Mode, push down on the - button when selecting a character and push any of the △, □, ○, × and R1 buttons.
