

A close-up, high-angle shot of a screaming face, possibly a mannequin or a creature, trapped inside a metal cage. The face is pale and has wide, staring eyes and an open mouth in a scream. The cage is made of heavy metal bars and is secured with several thick, rusty chains. The chains are attached to the walls of the cage and are secured with padlocks. The lighting is dim and orange, creating a sense of horror and confinement. The background is dark and indistinct, suggesting a prison or a laboratory.

PROLOGUE

It was two years ago that Henry Townshend moved into Room 302 of South Ashfield Heights, an apartment building in the medium-sized city of Ashfield. Henry was happy and enjoying his new life.

But five days ago, something strange began to happen. A recurring dream began to haunt him. And there was one other thing...

CHARACTERS

HENRY TOWNSHEND

Henry is a calm, young man who never lets his feelings show.

By the time the story begins, he has been locked in his room for five straight days. Suddenly, a large hole appears in his bathroom wall with no reason or warning, and he is dragged into the depths of terror.

EILEEN GALVIN

Eileen is Henry's next-door neighbor, the young resident of Room 303. She has a kind personality, although she has the tendency to depend too heavily on others at times. The relationship between Eileen and Henry is nothing more than simple recognition of one another, but they are both dragged into a strange set of events that will change everything.
